

The night had slipped into the next day.

This little story about my mother, H  l  ne de Bosmelet, turning black with soot from the fire place is so poignant for me. It shows how vulnerable and strange her early years were. My grandmother told me this story many times.