

I saw a mother still clutching her dead child.

In Golden Spurs, Diana de Bosmelet describes looking into the dark cattle car and seeing an emaciated mother with a two-day-old dead baby in her arms. This must have been particularly haunting to Diana as her daughter, my mother H el ene de Bosmelet, was just 4 months old.